COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

TUESDAY EVENING, SEPT. 16.

ALTHOUGH money in London seems unchanged in value a general improvement is noticeable in stocks, Consols being ⅛ higher at 101⅛. French Rentes ⅛ higher at 108½, and the 3½ per cent. Indian Sterling Loan also 4 up at 107⅛. Rupee Paper is lower by ⅛ in Bours and 7-16 in Fours-and-a-half, but this of course is due to the decline on this side, accompanied by easier exchange.

In the Liverpool Cotton market yesterday a fair business was done, the sales being 12,000 bales, including 2,000 Surats. Reuter calls the tone steady and the official quotations are unaltered, both for spot cotton and arrivals. Private messages, however, gave the market as rather easier and in New York there was a drop of ⅛ cent. in ready and 10 points in January Mid.-Uplands. The increased scale of receipts no doubt is the weakening influence, but after all they are still small as compared with previous seasons as will be seen from the following comparisons :—

	1884	1883	1882
Two days' Receipts	16,000	22,000	16,700
Three days' do.	25,000	34,000	25,000
Total since 1st Sept	92,000	131,000	108,000

The market here to-day has been very dull, with nothing whatever doing either in old or new cotton, although sellers are disposed to accept a decline of Rs. 1 to Rs. 2 per candy all round. Yesterday afternoon, however, an European firm sold and native dealers bought about 1,000 bales of new crop consisting of good Omras at Rs. 187 and Good Broach at Rs. 215 per candy for March delivery.

WHEAT AND SEEDS remain unaltered in position Supplies are limited and prices comparatively steady, but no new business is being put through for export.

FREIGHTS have not moved in any way. For Liverpool the liners ask 15s., but shippers decline to book wheat over 12s. 6d. Meantime there is no ready steamer on the berth. For the continental ports 17s. 6d. to 20s. are still the ruling quotations. Cargoes remain pretty much the same Coals being the only article showing any strength.

EXCHANGE.—There has been no movement in rates to-day if we except a small amount of bank telegraphic having been done at 1s. 7 7-16d. The banks are still buyers of private bills at the ready quotation for delivery up to the end of the year, but no paper is making. Quotations close at :—

Bank Bills on demand	1s. 7 15-32d.	per rupee.
Do. Telegraphic	1s. 7 13-32d.	"
Do. Three months' sight	1s. 7 9-16d.	"
Credits do. do.	1s. 7¾d.	"
France do. do.	2'27	"

GOVERNMENT PAPER is quiet but unchanged in value. Fours we quote at Rs. 99½ per cash ; Fours-and-a-half at Rs. 102.

SHARES continue dull with little doing. Mills are somewhat irregular ; but the tendency is still downwards.

DEFECTIVE OR FAILING SIGHT.

THE sense of sight is so valuable that the importance of perfect and carefully adjusted spectacles can scarcely be overrated ; although the wearing of single eye-glasses should be strictly avoided, we have the highest medical authority, confirmed by daily experience, that imperfect glasses, together with the haphazard plan of selection generally employed, are frequent causes of irremediable injury to the sight ; and as no present economy can compensate for such a loss, it behoves all to be cautious how they are tempted to use the common pebble or glass spectacles now so generally sold.

For the guidance of those who are using pebble spectacles, it may be stated that when the pebbles are cut against the grain, and not polished on the principle which has been universally declared the most appropriate based on scientific research, they are injurious to the sight.

Undivisable as the unnecessary wearing of spectacles undoubtedly is, the common notion that their use should be postponed to the utmost is proved beyond dispute to be a grave mistake.

Being in possession of all the optical instruments taken recently as from Dr. A. Meniel, we are not only in a position to suit the eye sight to perfection, but to supply different accommodations for each eye which so frequently are needed.

The Bombay Gazette

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1884.

THE coming change at the headquarters of the Supreme Government is so imminent an event that, although less than a week has passed since Lord Dufferin's appointment was made known, we are already able to count, almost to a day, upon the date of his coming here. Our Simla correspondent telegraphs that the new Viceroy will leave London on the 7th of November, so that he may be expected in Bombay towards the end of that month. There will be ample time in the interval to decide upon the steps to be taken for giving him a fitting welcome on his setting foot upon the soil of India ; and the satisfaction with which his appointment is regarded here is so cordial that we cannot doubt that the demonstration, whatever its form may be, will be impressive and sincere. From Bombay the new Governor-General will at once proceed for Calcutta, where he will be received by the retiring Viceroy. Lord Ripon's departure, though no date has yet been named for it, will then be a matter of a few days, and it is very probable that early in December a new demand will be made upon the interest of the people of Bombay by the presence in their midst of a very dis- [illegible] guest. This, too, will be an incident of which it will no doubt be proposed to take official cognizance, by presenting Lord Ripon with an address, or in some other way. In any event, the coming and going of the two distinguished statesmen will be amongst the most interesting incidents of the cold season.

WHATEVER Lord Dufferin may be in need of, it is already certain that he will not be short of advice as to the course he should pursue when he comes to this country. Indian subjects have of late been discussed at home with almost phenomenal activity, and with a prodigality of suggestion which makes us suspect that a desire prevails to help the next Viceroy to a policy—to a policy, moreover, which shall be the very reverse of Lord Ripon's, and shall in some essential respects approximate to that of his predecessor. The Times has put itself at the service of the would-be instructors of the coming Viceroy. It has given ready hospitality to the ostentatious lucubration, of the anonymous contributor who wants to see the armies of the Native States reduced to mere body-guards. And now, as we briefly indicated yesterday, it has suffered itself to become the medium for raising an ill-judged and totally unreasonable demand for a revival of Lord Lytton's Vernacular Press Act. Whether or not the Times agrees with the wild suggestion which it is so ready to print is not quite clear ; nor is that a point of great importance. What is clear is that an effort has been made, even before it was known who the new Viceroy would be, to sound the note to which his policy should attune itself. Those who have set about this enterprise belong to the order of politicians who forget nothing and learn nothing. They have forgotten nothing of the folly which inspired the Press Act of 1878 ; they have learnt nothing from the humiliating fate of that impolitic measure. They desire that the new Viceroy should repeat the experiment which, when Lord Lytton tried it, yielded a confessed failure. And they ask for more than that. They ask not only that the experiment that he tried and failed with should be repeated, but that the coming Viceroy should take up a task which Lord Lytton looked at, but prudently decided to let alone—the task, namely, of readjusting the relations of the Native States to the Imperial Government. Certainly it would be difficult to find any pretext for this writing down of the tributary Princes at this particular juncture, except in the fact that the time is at hand when a change will be made in the Supreme Government. The writer tells us nothing that has not been told over and over again. His statistical account of the armies of the Native States is almost an echo of an article which appeared in the same columns more than five years ago ; his warnings and conclusions are the warnings and conclusions with which he, or some other contributor, has made the readers of the Times familiar for years past. Nor will it be forgotten that Mr. Archibald Forbes having, on the occasion of a visit to Simla a few years since, heard something from somebody about the danger with which the Empire was threatened by the feudatory States, put his fears and his fancies into print, and caused much uneasiness—to timid people at home. So that in all that we are being told to-day on this subject there is nothing that is new, nothing that—apart from the coming change at Calcutta—would not have been as opportunely published five, ten, or even twenty years ago as now.

The writer has already dealt with the Mahratta States and with the Mahomedan States, including in the former Gwalior, Indore, and Baroda, and in the latter the Nizam's Territory, Bhopal, and Bahawalpur. But his survey of the twenty-two Mahomedan States is virtually limited to Hyderabad, for, he explains, "practically the question of our relation with these States resolves itself into the difficult problem of our relations with the Nizam." Apparently the strongest part of the case for an interference with these armies—so far as it rests on grounds of military danger—has now been set forth. The writer dealt in the first instance with the Mahratta States, on the express grounds that "they possess the greatest military power, and also on account of their having been our most formidable opponents in the past." If, then, he fails to show cause why the status of "the greatest military power" amongst the Native States, and "our most formidable opponents in the past," should be interfered with, what better prospects has he of making out his case when he comes to deal with States of no military significance, who have not been hostile to us within living memory, and whose hostility in the future there are no specific grounds for fearing ? The alarmists cannot well decline to stand or fall by the verdict which is passed upon their plea concerning the Mahratta States, for it is in these States, according to the latest exponent of their views, that the crucial danger lies. Now, of the three States described as possessing the greatest military power, one must be at once marked off. Baroda, though it is classed amongst these formidable States, turns out to have, in the writer's opinion, an almost contemptible nondescript force—"an utterly useless army"—"a force utterly without use or value." From the point of view of the Baroda taxpayers this is no doubt regrettable enough. It is hard upon them that they should have to support a force like that of which the English poet wrote two hundred years ago :—"In peace a charge, in war a doubtful aid." But then the Imperial Government are under no obligation to see that the Gackwar's army is kept in a state of efficiency, and if it is as inefficient as it is represented to be, so much the less reason for regarding it as a cause for uneasiness. Nor is the army of the Nizam in a much better plight. The same writer who wishes to persuade us of the menace which these armies hold out to the British power admits that the forces maintained in Hyderabad are "distinctly inferior to the standard attained in the rest of the country," and that while money is lavishly spent upon them, the result is striking inefficiency. Undoubtedly the case is different both with Scindia and with Holkar. Few people would take exception to the statement that of all the [illegible] Native States, excepting perhaps Nepaul, the army of Gwalior is the most efficient and the most "formidable." But this description, true though it is, is strictly relative. We wonder how many of those who have read it have asked themselves how much efficien[illegible] it implied. The writer should have taken a more definite standard of comparison than that of "all the Native States." Or, better still, he might have abandoned comparisons altogether, and dealt in a positive way with some of the leading features of the military systems of Scindia and Holkar. He is certain that the armies of these Princes are formidable, but apparently he knows no more about their equipment than about the equipment of the body-guard of the King of Siam. It would have spoilt his case somewhat, but it would have made his description of the Gwalior and Indore armies more complete, if he had added that the soldiers of Scindia and Holkar are in great part armed with weapons which even a generation ago would have been deemed old-fashioned—with Brown Besses and matchlocks, and weapons of the kind which usually figure in the armaments of West African chieftains. Nor is the contributor to the Times any more communicative in regard to the value of these armies as fighting forces. What about their discipline ? What about their drill ? Who has trained them, and whom have they at their head capable of handling them in the field ? What is the education of their officers, their intelligence, their military experience, their status ? Would they be decently efficient as officers in our native regiments ? Everybody knows that the best efforts of some of these Mahratta chiefs to obtain the services of British officers for the training of their levies have failed. They are ill-organized, ill-disciplined, ill-armed mobs, the material for fair armies no doubt, but as different from armies as rough yarn is from fine cloth.

The writer has told us only a part, and that a very small part, of the truth in relation to these native armies. He has re-arranged some statistics which have for years been familiar to every one acquainted with the elements of the subject. [illegible] the whole matter as the assertion that the British isles are inhabited by thirty millions of people represents the whole characteristics of the United Kingdom and its people. He gives no weight whatever to the fact which here and there he reluctantly admits—the military inefficiency of these forces. Then he ignores the equally important fact that in the majority of instances we could not interfere with the armies of the Native States without violating treaty engagements. He ignores, lastly, the political aspects of the question. This is not a mere matter of arithmetic. By crediting Scindia with a possible thirty thousand soldiers, and Holkar with eleven thousand, and by arriving at a grand total for the armies of all the Native States of 300,000 men, one may work out a telling sum in simple addition. But great political problems are not to be solved merely by a display of big totals. We want to know what is to be gained by re-opening questions that were settled long since in accordance with an intelligible principle. We then recognized that it would be easier to maintain our position in regard to the Native States if we kept on a footing of friendship with them. It was and ever must be a friendship tempered by vigilance, as political friendships all the world should always be. But in this principle we have found a modus vivendi which for all practical purposes has served us fairly well, especially as we have always known that we are not dependent upon the simple goodwill of the fifty-five millions of inhabitants of the feudatory States. Separated as these States are, in geographical position, in race, in creed, and in political interest, we have never needed to think of them, even when the possibility of their hostility has been assumed as one mass. Readers of Professor Seeley's "Expansion of England" will remember how clearly he has pointed out the effect of racial and political division amongst the native population in advancing and securing the British power in India. The same principle, which has operated so powerfully in the past, may still be taken into account amongst the factors which make for our strength. It will fight for us far more powerfully than the armies of the Native States can ever fight against us. If one or two native chiefs were insane enough to try conclusions with us, half a dozen would volunteer their assistance in reducing then to order, and the rest would watch events. The Native States are valuable cards in the hands of a competent player, so long as they are not given a common grievance and united by a common fear. There is, indeed, only one way of reducing the potency of this important factor, and that is by uniting the feudatory States in hostility to the Paramount Power through some such rash measure as this project of disarmament, which would to their minds mean approaching annexation. If that should ever be resolved upon, it would not be worth while to protest against a revival of the Vernacular Press Act. The one measure would be the appropriate complement of the other, and might possibly be defended on the ground of symmetry.

. At a meeting of the Committee of the Bombay International Exhibition yesterday afternoon, the opening of the Exhibition was formally fixed for December, 1886. The reasons for asking the Secretary of State to waive his request that the Exhibition should be postponed to the following year were irresistibly strong. It was a question of securing the success of the Exhibition or of throwing all into jeopardy. The Government of Bombay in the first place, and the Government of India in the next, deserve the warm acknowledgments of the Bombay public for the readiness with which they placed the opinion of the guarantors before the authorities at home. The Secretary of State also deserves our thanks for so readily waiving the request for postponement which was made in the supposed interest of the London Exhibition, to be held earlier in the year. Now that the proverbial danger of delay is averted, the success of the Exhibition is assured. The Government of Bombay has been requested by the meeting which was held yesterday afternoon to address the other local Governments, and ascertain what contributions they can send ; and in case any local Government should be unable to provide agency or money for collections for the Bombay Exhibition owing to the claims of the Exhibition in London, the Bombay Government is urged to take whatever steps may be necessary to secure the adequate representation of a province so unfortunately situated. It may be hoped that all the local Governments will pride themselves upon having the localities over which they preside fittingly represented upon so important an occasion. The functions of the General Committee came to an end when this resolution was passed. A committee of the guarantors will now take up the running. Their first and chief duty will be to get the general body of the guarantors to affix their signatures to the guarantee bond for the amounts for which they have so liberally undertaken to make themselves liable. When this formality has been completed, ample funds can be at once obtained on the security of the bond. Then the actual business of the Exhibition can be undertaken without a day's delay. Everything augurs well for this great undertaking, which is destined to mark an era in the development of Bombay.

WE have been long expecting the production of "Patience" here. A month or more ago it was revealed to our theatrical managers that there was a good deal of æstheticism afloat, which should be worked off before everybody went away from the hill camp of Simla to the plain camp of Calcutta. The operetta of "Patience" was decided upon as the best possible vent. Love-sick maidens, and matrons too, were diligently recruited, the more easily found perhaps as it was Leap Year. A regiment of dragoons was enrolled. Then we sought a brace of poets, one of the fleshly, the other of the high order. Mr. Norton, of the Engineers, was [illegible] to have all the requirements of the one, Sir [illegible] Johnston every qualification of the other. Few people would take exception to the statement that of all the [illegible] Native States, excepting perhaps Nepaul, the army of Gwalior is the most efficient and the most "formidable." YESTERDAY it was definitely determined by the General Committee to open the Bombay International Exhibition in December, 1886. The Hon. F. Forbes Adam presided at the meeting, and the resolution, which was moved by the Hon. W. M. Macaulay and seconded by Mr. Bengali, declared that the Government of India having no objection to the opening at this date, it should be finally fixed upon, the Government of Bombay being asked to ascertain the views of other local Governments, and in the event of any of these finding it inconvenient to provide agency or money for collection in December, 1886, to undertake whatever steps may be necessary to secure adequate representations from them.

THE Town Council yesterday considered a memorandum from Government according sanction to Government officers to compete for the prizes offered for the best design of a new Municipal Building. In connection with the subject, it was proposed that the time for receiving designs for the new Municipal Offices and Hall be extended for one month beyond the 6th November next, the date already fixed. It was also proposed that the requisition for detailed drawings be omitted from the general instructions published for the guidance of architects taking part in the competition. Both propositions were negatived; and things therefore remain as before. A discussion took place as to the salary to be allowed to Dr. Davidson as acting Health Officer for six months in the place of Dr. Weir. Some members were of opinion that the maximum of Rs. 1,500 should be reserved only for tried and long service; and that Dr. Davidson, even although the Council had a high opinion of him, should begin with Rs. 1,200, the minimum. Mr. Geary struck an average between the two extremes, and his motion for fixing the salary at Rs. 1,300 per mensem was agreed to.

THE recent robbery of silver from the Bombay Mint formed the subject of a trial at the Criminal Sessions yesterday, when Daryakhan Ebrahimkhan, a private of the 10th Regiment N. I., was charged with having, on the 17th May last, while employed as a sentry at the Mint, stolen several pieces of silver weighing in the aggregate 3,096 tolas, of the value of Rs. 3,000, the property of Government. Another prisoner, Fakerjee Abbajee, a brother-in-law of the first, was charged with having voluntarily assisted in the disposal of the bars of silver, knowing them to be stolen property. Both the prisoners were further charged with dishonestly receiving the silver. After a good deal of evidence had been gone into, the judge summed up and the jury retired. They returned after 20 minutes with a unanimous verdict that the first prisoner was not guilty of the second, that of receiving stolen property, as also was the second prisoner. The first prisoner admitted a previous conviction for theft. His lordship sentenced him, to three years' rigorous imprisonment, and the second prisoner to one year. The sessions then terminated.

THE rainfall this monsoon up to Saturday last at Lanowlee was 156 inches, and at Egutpoora 138 inches.

THE vacancy in the Viceregal Legislative Council caused by the death of Mr. Kristodas Pal has been filled by the appointment of Baboo Peari Lal Mohun Mookerjee.

THE Pioneer has received the following telegram from Penang in regard to the release of the crew of the Nisero at the instance of Colonel Lockhart:—"The survivors of the crew of the Nisero, numbering only eighteen, have arrived here, having been released by the Rajah of Teuom. Colonel Lockhart is also reached here from Acheen, his special mission being now at an end."

MR. F. B. PEACOCK has joined the Bengal Board of Revenue at Calcutta, and Mr. Ware-Edgar has assumed charge of the Judicial Secretaryship. Mr. Horace Cockerell, Senior Member of the Board, probably goes on short leave early in October, in which case Mr. Halliday, Commissioner of Patna, will officiate for him. It is probable that Mr. Boxwell, Magistrate of Gya, will be appointed to act for Mr. Halliday.

REFERRING to a statement which has been made, that Mr. E. C. Buck, Secretary to the Government of India in the Agricultural Department, will go home in the capacity of Chief Commissioner for the Indian Court at the Indian and Colonial Exhibition in London, the Allahabad paper says:—"Mr. Buck is merely charged with the duties of corresponding with local Governments on the subject as Secretary of the Department in charge of the exhibition. No financial arrangements have been completed, and Mr. Buck's visit to England is on furlough, not on duty. The fact seems to be that no positive course can be adopted until the views of the home authorities are more definitely ascertained, and the extent to which local Governments are in a position to co-operate more distinctly understood. In any case it is unlikely that Mr. Buck will have any closer connection with the Exhibition than that which he is ex-officio bound to maintain in this country."

THE signs of distress due to the failure of the crops in parts of Bengal are becoming more marked. In the Nulhatti thannah, Beerbhoom district, 2,500 people are now employed on relief works. There is hope, however, that with seasonable rain during the present month the prospects of the crops may improve and the pressure disappear. The local Government and the district officers are fully alive to the necessities of the present state of affairs. Orders have been issued for the commencement of the railway earthworks between Sitarampur and Puralia, which is the first section of the Nagpur-Bengal line. The rainfall has been slight in those parts, and the commencement of the earthwork should attract a good deal of local labour, and be beneficial in relieving any partial distress that may appear. The districts suffering from scarcity in Beerbhoom are a long distance from this tract.

A CORRESPONDENT of an up-country paper, writing from Cawnpore, says that for the past few days a case somewhat similar to the Fuller case has been creating an unusual stir in the station; the outlines of the case are as follows:—

A Mrs. Tait, as elicited from the evidence for the prosecution, kicked his bearer under grave and sudden provocation, and the man, on returning to his house, complained of severe pain about the region of the abdomen. Three days after the circumstance a complaint was lodged against Mr. Tait and the deposition was taken, at the suggestion of Dr. Deane, the Civil Surgeon, of the bearer, who was in hospital gradually sinking under the effects of injuries he had sustained. In his declaration on his dying bed he accused Mr. Tait as the immediate cause of his approaching death, which took place on the 3rd instant. Mr. Tait was taken into custody and handed over for his trial to Mr. Bird, but released on his furnishing security for Rs. 2,000. The case came on for hearing for the first time on the 9th instant, and the Kotwal is prosecuting on behalf of the Crown.

THERE is every prospect of hops for malt liquor brewed in this country becoming an indigenous production. The area of 120 acres under cultivation by the Maharajah of Kashmere has this year yielded 600 maunds, the whole of which have been purchased on the spot by the Murree Brewery Company, Limited. "This yield," says the Allahabad paper, "is not bad considering that the average yield per acre throughout England is, rather less than a maund only per acre. The quality of Kashmere hops is good, though probably not of the highest: but the highest quality, we believe, is in comparatively little use. Again, quality is mostly a question of starting with the right class of plant and cultivating it suitably." It remains with the brewing interest, which has already accomplished matters of far more difficulty, to follow the lead of Kashmere, and make hops almost as plentiful as barley, and relatively as cheap.

A NATIVE correspondent of the Pioneer puts the vernacular press question in a light in which it would be well if people at home could see it. He advises that the scurrilous papers be left alone, for he says, "Such papers, I can assure you, have a very limited number of readers, and find no sympathisers among the educated class of natives, most of whom come to know their existence only when their names appear in English papers like yours." And he goes on to say, "It is not too much to say that these ephemeral prints owe their very existence and circulation to the publication of their names in leading English journals. In fact, in order to gain notoriety, they purposely resort to the stupid way of going to extremes." We fancy that this very sensible letter throws a more genuine light upon the subject than certain communications which have been telegraphed from Calcutta to London during the past week or two.

IN his annual report just issued on the health of Holborn, Dr. Gibbon, the officer in question, not only takes occasion to talk oracularly of the "present Government's unchristian and unconstitutional abandonment of the Contagious Diseases Act," but he settles in quite as off-hand a fashion the great problem of the housing of the poor. The real crux, it seems, is not so much to prevent overcrowding and the habitation of tumbledown rookeries, as to ensure the maintenance of repairs in the poorer houses. This is impossible, and why? Because "the Legislature and the Executive Government, by encouraging injurious, immoral, and obstructive trading in the public streets, allow the population to become so demoralized that it is impossible to prevent their stripping the house of their fittings." "Surely, of all the answers to the 'Bitter Cry,' says the Pall Mall Gazette, "this demand for the suppression of street trading is one of the most grotesque, and therefore perhaps the most characteristic of this Holborn oracle."

THERE has been another change in the Government of French India. Two weeks ago M. Drouhet, the Governor, received a telegram from Paris, intimating that a successor to him had been appointed, and permitting him to return to France on the 14th instant. He was accordingly to have embarked at Pondicherry on Saturday. The name of his successor has not yet transpired, but until his arrival M. Celoron de Blainville, Director of the Interior, will exercise the powers of Governor.

SOME six or seven weeks have elapsed since we were told that the Council of Ministers at Constantinople had decided to send reinforcements to the army in Yemen in consequence of disturbances among the Arab tribes of that province. But it is only within the last three weeks that the first step has been taken towards carrying out this decision by chartering one of the largest steamers of the Austrian Lloyd's Company. The long delay which has thus elapsed and the fact that only one steamer has been chartered seem to contradict the alarmist rumours which have been for some time current about the gravity of the insurrection.

A TRAVELLER just arrived from Teheran tells the Constantinople correspondent of the Times that the Babi movement in the South has awakened considerable interest among all classes in Persia, and that he saw at Ispahan a document purporting to be a proclamation of the Mahdi. Some of the highest religious authorities in Persia are in doubt as to whether the leader of the Soudan insurrection is really what he pretends to be, because he has not yet shown all the signs which the real Mahdi is to display, one of which, we may presume, is a complete triumph over all his enemies. They prudently, therefore, suspend their judgment until he has made good his pretensions. The interest which they meanwhile take in his career is easily explained by the fact that Mahdism is essentially a Shiya doctrine, and has hitherto struck deep root only among populations profoundly imbued, like the Persians, with the Shiya spirit of religious mysticism.

ACCORDING to an account published of the effective strength of the French navy, the number of officers and men of all ranks in the service is 70,372. Besides this, the marines, the marine artillery, and the corps of naval engineers contain among them 22,800 men. The number of officers and men provided for by our own estimates in 1883-84 was 39,890, and of this number 2,350 were boys on training-ships. The marines amounted to 12,490—half afloat and half on shore. The total number of the Coastguard is 4,000, and there are 960 officers and men employed on the Indian service. The French navy is manned by conscription from among men not less than twenty years old who lead a seafaring life. The conscripts serve for six months in an arsenal and for three years afloat; then they are on furlough for two years without pay, and then they pass into the reserve. When we have made every allowance for these facts, it is impossible to be pleased at so striking a contrast—presuming the figures given to be accurate.

THIS is what the Statesman thinks of the letter which Dr. Rajendralala Mitra, of Calcutta, thought fit to write to Mr. Malabari in addressing him on the subject of Widow Marriage:—"In defence of the customs of his own race, Dr. Rajendralala simply reminds us that if the customs of infant marriage and perpetual widowhood produce the evils which Englishmen observe with such painful clearness, they must remember on the other hand that the English custom of late marriages produces in its turn evils that are undeniable, and which to the native mind seem worse than any evils that flow from their own. We regret very much that Dr. Rajendralala does not view the matter in the same light as the younger men of his own country, and as most Englishmen do; but it would surely be monstrous intolerance to deny the Doctor the right of stating as freely, and as strongly as truth permits the evils amongst ourselves which seem to him to more than counterbalance the same class of evils in Hindoo society. Dr. Rajendralala's letter seems to us a sensible and proper letter, and in no way open to the strictures made upon it."

THE Voice of India, summarising the opinions of the native press, says that Mr. Slagg's proposals for the better administration of India are being keenly discussed by native papers, which are unanimous as to the necessity of reform in the constitution of the India Council, and of making the Government of the country directly responsible to Parliament. The Council, it is urged, has done more harm than good to Indian interests. It has not only failed to exercise that wholesome control for which it was established, but has misused its influence in upholding old traditions and shielding official high-handedness. Members of the India Council pretend to a monopoly of special knowledge; but this is scarcely possible under the ever-changing condition of affairs. And even when such knowledge is available it is used more in the furtherance of class interests than in promoting the good of the country at large. For these and other reasons some of the leading journals recommend the abolition of the India Council, whilst others would be content with a radical change in its constitution. A Standing Committee, such as Mr. Slagg proposes, is preferred by most writers. "There is only one paper on our list which puts in a word for the Council, though it admits that there is room for improvement."

HOW THE THEOSOPHISTS CAME TO BOMBAY.

WE mentioned a day or two since that a batch of letters which were written from New York during 1877 and 1878 by Colonel Olcott and Madame Blavatsky, to a citizen of Bombay, had been placed in our hands. From these a sufficiently clear idea can be got as to some, at least, of the objects with which the President of the Theosophical Society and Madame Blavatsky came to Bombay. Their purpose, to put it briefly, was to denounce and, if possible, to destroy Christianity, or, to use the phrase employed by Colonel Olcott when telling of what Madame Blavatsky had done in one of her books—to "tear Christianity to tatters." The crimes of Christianity, in fact, are the master theme of all these letters. Clergy and laity alike are charged with "hypocrisy and animal propensities," and the Theosophical Society therefore resolved to spread in Eastern countries authentic facts about these things, as well as about the "proceedings of Bible revisers," &c., whatever there may have been to say about them. With this view the corresponding Fellows of the Society in the East were asked to send to New York all the facts that they could collect about "missionary criminality, licentiousness, or worthlessness." Colonel Olcott's Bombay correspondent was informed, when admitted into the Society, that it was a secret organisation, that its members had grips, signs, and passwords, and that prudence and silence were cardinal virtues with them. As a forcible illustration of the faith and civilisation of the Far West, Colonel Olcott affects an enthusiastic veneration for the religion and the philosophy of the East. India he speaks of as a motherland, as his chosen country, and her people as his brothers. As to Christians or Christianity, they were the bigotted worshippers of an unreal God, and a patchwork revelation, and wherever they went lust, rapine, cupidity, and cruelty followed in their track. Sometimes the writer, after having risen to a transcendental height, falls at one sudden swoop to a commonplace level of worldly business. When he came to India, he should, no doubt, engage in trade for a time, if he could find "a suitable native partner (for he would not do business with an Englishman)."

THE noteworthy feature in Colonel Olcott's letters is his repeated requests for information about the practice of the occult sciences in India. "Tell me," he writes, "what you have seen yourself of magic and its wise adepts. What spiritual phenomena have fakirs and other holy men produced in your presence. . . . Think of this, and describe to me what strange things you have seen, and that give you proofs of man's future existence." But he has to deal with a rather negligent correspondent, and more than once he repeats this question about Indian magic, apparently to no purpose.

Of the effect which Theosophy had upon his own life and conversation, Colonel Olcott speaks with touching candour. Here is his apologia pro vita sua:—"I have under Christian training been a man of fashion, of the world, of women, clubs, races, &c., &c. For two years past, since I began to study the Oriental philosophy, and discovered what a true manhood exacted of men of intellect, I have abandoned wine, women, clubs, races, &c., theatres,—all—most willingly and unhesitatingly, and turned my thoughts, my aspiration, my hopes, towards India." His intention, after getting to India, is to master the language, take to the platform as a public speaker, and tell the cunning missionaries to their faces what are the practical workings of Christianity. At present, however, he is "but a poor, ignorant creature," though his heart is right, and time and patience would enable him to talk understandingly.

Madame Blavatsky's letters are fewer than those of Colonel Olcott, but they are even "stronger" than his. For decorum's sake, however, we are obliged to be sparing in the extracts we make from them. A great deal, indeed, may be expected from a lady who boasts of having shot several Papal zouaves at Mentana "and a few damned Catholic priests." Strong language, it is clear, is tolerated in the higher circles of Theosophy, for she writes:—"If you could hear Olcott, our worthy President, swearing at you for your silence, you would be terrified, and give him up at once in disgust, though your friend — assures me that you will write very prettily. I do not believe him, for he is half a Christian." Madame Blavatsky is not less emphatic than Colonel Olcott in her denunciation of Christianity. But she is not always as intelligible as she might be. For instance, she expresses her willingness to prove to the missionaries any day "that they are mules, the mongrel production of a Dutch horse and a she ass." In suggesting a plan of operation to her Bombay correspondent, she urges him to "have his eye upon Rajahs and Mahrajahs. "Could you not look out for your Bombay branch, she asks, "either Gwalior (Scindia) or the Holkar of indore, those most faithful and loyal friends of the British (!) The young Guicowar is unfortunately scarcely worth as yet, and therefore not eligible for fellowship." Here are extracts from these singular letters must be brought to an end. Enough has been quoted to show the spirit in which Madame Blavatsky and her associate went to work; some piquant passages we have been compelled to omit.

DR. F. HARTMANN, a member of the General Council of the Theosophical Society at Adyar, Madras, has published the following observations on the correspondence between Madame Blavatsky and Madame Coulomb printed in the current number of the Christian College Magazine:—

"There has appeared in a certain sectarian journal published at Madras, an anonymous article, entitled 'The Collapse of Koot Hoomi,' pretending to give extracts from a number of letters, said to have been written by Madame Blavatsky to Mrs. Coulomb. Why such a title should have been selected for it is a conundrum, because it neither disputes the existence of the Mahatmas and their powers, nor does it deny the occurrence of such phenomena as have been described; all it does is to throw dirt at Madame Blavatsky, and is thus an attempt to cause the ignorant to believe that Madame Blavatsky had been implicated in the production of fraudulent phenomena by the assistance of Madame Coulomb and her husband. Thus madame Coulomb cuts her own throat for the purpose of making Madame Blavatsky angry. Thus she gives herself up to the devil in the shape of a lady,—to her sweet revenge. The letters from which the one in which my own hand-writing is clumsily imitated, was called a pioneer, has come to light, and the prophecy of the Master has come to pass as predicted.

Unfortunately we are not in possession of the originals, to compare their writing and spelling with the hand-writing of Madame Blavatsky; but their vulgar style and expression is sufficient proof, that they could not have been composed by the author of "Isis Unveiled." Neither do they correspond with facts such as are known to me. There are a number of discrepancies and prevarications in those letters, sufficient to show that they could not have been written by Madame Blavatsky; but it is not at present my intention to go into these details because they refer to occurrences that happened before my arrival at Adyar, and did not come under my personal observation. It seems, however, clear that the person who attempted to forge my handwriting could find no difficulty in imitating or altering the hand-writting of one with whom she was much longer acquainted. Furthermore some of the statements made in the libellous article are direct falsehoods. As for instance, the President-Founder was not "shut out from the shrine," but went there whenever he pleased, and it was he who put my letter into the "shrine." It is, however, true that for the most part of the time Damodar was the entrusted with the keeper of these keys, and if any hole had been there its presence, if cognisable at all, would have been detected by him, as he examined and rearranged it often. In short, a very unusual thing for them to receive such an order on Sunday, and they therefore refused to do any work. His worship said it seemed to him a very reasonable order to clean the ship on a Sunday, for, as he always took it, "cleanliness was next to godliness." The men were bound to obey the captain's order, even if it took them all day to do so. He fined them each two days' wages and the costs the captain was put to in prosecuting them.

THEFT OF DIAMOND RINGS AT POONA.—Mr. Eduljee Colabawalla on Monday morning gave information to the police that he was robbed of several diamond rings, of the collective value of Rs. 2,000, the previous night. It appears that these rings were safely secured in a treasure chest in his house at Bhowanie Pait, but the keys were kept in a table drawer, and were easily accessible. Mr. Eduljee Colabawalla has, however, spotted his man, and the police are on the alert.—Deccan Herald.
